A. An asymptomatic 12-year-old girl presented with unilateral dilated and tortuous retinal vessels. B. Optical coherence tomography demonstrates a dramatic pattern of circular lesions corresponding to cross-sections of abnormal retinal vessels. Findings are consistent with the diagnosis of Wyburn-Mason syndrome.